Introduction

Pupils will succeed best if they have the support and interest of their parents and teachers. This forms the basis for establishing an explicit Home-School Agreement, which sets out the expectations and responsibilities of pupils, parents and the school. Please read the agreement carefully and discuss it with your son or daughter.

What happens if there is a problem?

Parents

Parents who have concerns regarding the School's side of the agreement can take the issue up in a number of ways. Issues with teachers should be addressed through the pastoral system and taken up with the teacher directly, the Head of Subject or the appropriate Progress Leader. More serious issues involving staff can be taken up directly with the relevant Deputy Headteacher or Headteacher.

Matters relating to the curriculum can be addressed directly to the Deputy Headteacher (Curriculum).

If problems are not resolved following contacting staff at the school, parents should refer to the schools' complaints procedures on the School Website

The School does have an obligation to report situations if parents are in breach of their duties of care for children. Attendance falling below 90% is automatically referred to the Education Welfare Services. Any disclosures from children must be passed on to Social Services for investigation and guidelines stress that we must pass on such disclosures even when we are uncertain as to their authenticity.

Pupils

Pupils who break the rules will know the consequences. Minor misdemeanours may result in warnings, deduction of conduct points, or lunchtime detentions. Persistent or more serious infringements could result in after-school detentions, peer isolation or exclusion. Parents will be automatically notified of these latter consequences.

Pupils who feel that an issue has not been resolved may take up the matter with their form teacher or a member of the Pastoral Team. Our rules are generally very straight forward but it is important for all pupils to understand the reasons behind teacher actions even when they do not agree.
